MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT BRENDAN J. DUGAN '68

This issue of Terrier celebrates the Franciscan Ideal of serving others in need, which defines the mission of St. Francis College and is brought to life through the good works of the Brothers, students, faculty and alumni who make up our community.

The Franciscan Brothers brought this ideal to Brooklyn in 1858 when they emigrated from Ireland to establish a school a year later on Baltic Street that is now St. Francis College. Unlike many American colleges in the 19th century, St. Francis was created not to serve the children of privilege; it was created to provide a means of social and economic ascent to the children of immigrants who had precious few educational opportunities.

This ideal of serving others in need is thriving today at St. Francis College through our Project Access program, which is profiled on page 7. This program has transformed the lives of hundreds of young men and women who have a burning desire to make the most of their potential through a college education and can do so with extra help. Many St. Francis graduates are now pursuing fulfilling careers thanks to Project Access.

Today's St. Francis students are learning the importance and personal reward of serving others in need through a variety of activities. They take time from their busy schedules to raise money and awareness for cancer research through the Relay for Life and Shoot for the Cure. When tragedy struck Haiti after the devastating earthquake earlier this year our students joined the relief effort by organizing a variety of successful fundraisers. Meanwhile, Campus Ministry continues to engage students in projects with community-based organizations that open their eyes to the needs of others beyond the boundaries of our campus.

Our alumni carry on the Franciscan ideal of serving others in need far from Brooklyn. Joe Browne '68, the subject of this issue's "Profile of a Terrier" (page 17), devoted his talents for 40 years to the growth and success of the National Football League. Currently, he directs the league's community service efforts. Al DiGuido '78, founder of Al's Angels, which helps families who must cope with serious illness, domestic violence and financial distress, and Billy O'Connell '87, who founded Colette's Children's Home, which provides shelter to homeless women and single mothers, are not only changing lives in their communities but inspiring others to get involved locally as well.

This issue of Terrier also features St. Francis College's annual Donor Report. The College's ability to achieve its mission as a Franciscan institution depends heavily upon the contributions of alumni and friends who are acknowledged in this year's report. As you read this issue of Terrier, you will see how many lives your support enriches. Please accept my heartfelt thanks for your generosity.

Best wishes to you and your loved ones for a Merry Christmas and a healthy and prosperous 2011!

Sincerely,

Brendan J. Dugan '68

President Dugan Chief Brehon at Great Irish Fair

As Chief Brehon of the Great Irish Fair of New York, St. Francis College President Brendan J. Dugan '68 led the procession from Our Lady of Solace Church to the fairgrounds at MCU Park in Coney Island, kicking off the two day celebration of Irish culture and traditions September 18 and 19.

President Dugan offered thanks and gratitude for being honored at the fair. He thanked his late parents who immigrated to Brooklyn from County Donegal and credited them for instilling him with a strong sense of his Irish culture and history as well as a deep Catholic faith that is expressed in his numerous commitments to parish and community groups.

Special recognition was also given to the Diocese of Brooklyn and the rigorous, parochial education that President Dugan experienced, including a scholarship to attend St. Augustine High School.

He thanked the Franciscan Brothers and DeLaSalle Christian Brothers specifically for the personal, academic and professional lessons they offered.

Thousands came out to take in the rides, games, live music and exhibitors, including dozens of St. Francis College student athletes, student government members and others who managed all the children's rides and concessions.

The Great Irish Fair, which was first held in 1982 and re-energized under the Irish American Building Society Charities, Inc., is committed to the great Irish-American tradition of giving. All net proceeds from the fair will be donated to a charitable fund that benefits Brooklyn Diocesan Catholic Elementary Schools.

A New Logo for St. Francis College

St. Francis College began the 2010-2011 academic year by unveiling a new logo.

The new design is the result of a comprehensive process that gathered input from alumni, faculty, current students and many others.

THE SMALL COLLEGE OF BIG DREAMS

“We feel the new logo is a more meaningful representation of who we are and the values we want to express,” said

President Brendan J. Dugan '68. “With a glance, I think you can now learn a lot about our history, mission and focus.”

SFC Student Meets President Obama at White House Celebration

Earlier this fall when Sarah Darwish '13, a St. Francis College student and swim team member, attended a Landmarks Commission hearing in lower Manhattan about the status of the Muslim Community Center earmarked for the neighborhood around Ground Zero, she and her sister unexpectedly found themselves the target of an angry attendee.

The Darwishes, American citizens who are Muslim, represent two halves of an American Muslim equation. Sarah does not wear a headscarf but her sister, Daria, does; it was Daria who was singled out at the meeting. The sisters' spirited defense and emotional exchanges were highlighted on several television newscasts that night.

Paul Monteiro, associate director of White House Public Engagement, saw the reports and contacted Sarah on behalf of the White House to invite them for Iftar, a traditional family dinner to celebrate the end of the daily fast during Ramadan.

"Even after we received the invitation in the mail, we still didn't know if it was real," said Sarah. "We checked with the Interfaith Center of New York and found out they were going to the White House too."

In addition to dinner, which was attended by congressmen, diplomats, members of the Administration and community members, Sarah and Daria were given a tour of Washington, DC. They will also be featured in an upcoming CNN documentary.

"As someone who has celebrated Ramadan with my family throughout my whole life, it was an honor to have Iftar in what is the home of so many world leaders throughout history," said Sarah. "Meeting so many remarkable people motivated me to strive to do something significant with my life."

Recent Graduate Makes a Big Splash as a Filmmaker

Louis Hamwey '10 first heard about St. Francis College as a high school student in San Diego, CA. A water polo player, he took special note of the Terriers in 2005 during the team's first ever trip to the NCAA water polo Final Four championships held in southern California. Although the Terriers placed fourth in the tournament, Louis was impressed with what he saw—and decided to apply to St. Francis College where he could study communications in New York City and continue playing the sport he loved.

Once on campus, Louis exercised his creative skills by blogging on the College's Athletics website, recording the ups and downs of the water polo team as he and his teammates won and lost together. Out of the pool, he was energized intellectually by his coursework as a double major in Communication Arts and English; particularly during the production of a film he produced as part of his senior thesis.

Last spring, encouraged by Dr. Lynne Jackson, chair, department of Communication Arts, Louis applied for and was selected to participate in Real Ideas Studio's 2010 Cannes Filmmaking Program. A nonprofit organization based in San Jose, CA, Real Ideas Studio is dedicated to creating opportunities for emerging filmmakers, designers, and other creative individuals and is recognized for providing exceptional educational opportunities and the high quality work of its students.

"Louis was a perfect candidate for this program," said Dr. Jackson. "He is incredibly talented and took every opportunity St. Francis College offers to develop his filmmaking and storytelling skills."

After graduating in May, Louis flew to Cannes, France, where he met other program participants from all over the world. He became part of a filmmaking team that included students from England and Canada as well as American students from DePaul University and Arizona State University. Their assignment was to create a five-minute documentary in a matter of days about a subject of their choice, competing against six other teams of young filmmakers participating in the program.

Their film, titled Ludo, which in Latin means "to play," placed second in the competition. It features a local man named Jean Claude, who spends his days playing Pétanque, a bocce-like game, in a city park, using it as a means of simultaneously escaping and enjoying life. In addition, Louis received the competition's Emerging Producer Award for his contribution as producer of his group's project.

This fall, after a summer back in the pool as a lifeguard at New York University, Louis continues preparing for a filmmaking career as a graduate student at NYU, where he has begun earning a master's degree in Cinema Studies.

"Before coming to St. Francis I had never made a movie or documentary," he said. "Our professors always gave us everything we needed, from attention to resources, and I feel very prepared for anything that comes next."

Franciscan Ideals in Action

Students, Faculty and Alumni Make Service to Others a Habit

Start by doing what is necessary, then what is possible, and suddenly you are doing the impossible. — St. Francis of Assisi

At any given time at St. Francis College, it's easy to find people helping others: professors taking time to make sure a struggling student understands his or her coursework, students organizing fundraisers, and, of course, the Franciscan Brothers "walking their teaching" as described by St. Francis himself—on campus, in the community, and for one another.

"It's a big part of who we are," said Richard Coladarci, the College's director of Human Resources, who includes a presentation to new employees during orientation about the Franciscan spirit. "Being explicit about our values as an institution brings people together and helps drive our mission."

So how and why does the notion of serving others—the core of the Franciscan spirit—take hold and remain with students, faculty and alumni not only during their time at the College but often throughout their lives? From leading by example to infusing the Franciscan spirit into the life of the College by sending select students, faculty members and administrators to

"During my pilgrimage to Assisi, I discovered that the ideals of St. Francis are global in scope and profound in meaning. I was deeply moved by the Franciscans' selflessness, and I am happy that parts of this beautiful tradition became intertwined in me."

— Anthony Paratore '03

Assisi, Italy, every year to walk in the footsteps of St. Francis and return ready to share their experiences, the St. Francis College community embraces service as a way of life and allows it to shape its organizational purpose and choices.

SERVICE AS A MEANS TO UNDERSTANDING OURSELVES

"Service is a particularly Franciscan attribute for education," said Brother Edward Wesley, O.S.F. '68, chair of the English department. "Much of modern education sees the center of activity as the student and the acquisition of academic skills. The real objective of an education, however, is acquiring a greater knowledge of self and we come to that understanding only when we recognize that other people are part of who we are."

In other words, it is through service to others that we are able to see and appreciate who we are, how we are and what we are.

One way students begin this journey of self discovery is through the College's annual Community Service Fair, coordinated by the Campus Ministry, when representatives from community and other nonprofit organizations come to campus to generate interest among students for volunteer opportunities.

At last year's fair, one group of students helped Doc to Dock, a Brooklyn-based nonprofit organization comprising physicians and other medical professionals who gather unused medical supplies that typically get discarded in the U.S. to ship to developing countries and disaster-stricken areas. Students helped out by spending hours sorting and packing medical supplies.

Other ways students reach out to others include:

- Scholarship students perform 15 hours of community service per semester, many of whom tutor their peers in the SFC students, faculty and administrators are deeply involved with the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life and have raised nearly $100,000 for the society since 2006.

Academic Enhancement Center or work in the College's library.

- The Student Government Association and campus clubs organize community service opportunities each semester, often in the form of a food or clothing drive. One popular SGA-sponsored annual event is Relay for Life, which raises funds and awareness for cancer research and treatment. Last year, students also organized a number of fundraising events to support earthquake relief efforts in Haiti.
- The Terrier Challenge, a service component of the Department of Athletics, provides student-athletes and entire teams opportunities to "give back" to the community and the College.

ENTERTAINING ANGELS UNAWARE

One important way St. Francis College serves its community is by inviting neighbors to use the College's facility. Last year community groups, nonprofit organizations, and government entities used space on campus at no cost for meetings nearly every weekday. Senior citizens have access to computer, writing and tai-chi classes; feature films; art exhibits; and recreational swimming. In addition, the Callahan Center is available as exhibition space for local artists, providing them the opportunity to display their work for little or no cost. And the Department of Fine Arts organizes periodic free lunchtime classical music concerts performed by professional musicians.

"We are fortunate to have such a versatile facility and our campus is enlivened by the presence of community members," said Robert Oliva '04, the College's director of special events. "We're honored to help fulfill the College's mission by giving back to the community in this way."

The facility and several faculty and staff members are in play at least once a year when elementary school children and their teachers from P.S. 133 in Brownsville visit campus. Coordinated by Drs. Richard Giaquinto and Peter Leibman from the Department of Education, these visits are important because they not only expose children from a low-income neighborhood to a college environment but Education majors from St. Francis get a chance to participate in the programming for the youngsters, which includes a trip to the computer and science labs, library, cafeteria and gym as well as a brief presentation about making the right choices and the reasons a good education is important.

"These experiences are productive for the students and teachers who visit and those of us at St. Francis who rarely have a chance to actually interact with very young children," said Dr. Giaquinto. "It's important that we remain connected to the realities and challenges of the classroom so our curriculum remains relevant for the teachers we are training."

SERVICE-LEARNING: A WIN-WIN COMBINATION

"Service-learning happens at St. Francis all the time," said Dr. Starr Eaddy, professor of Biology and Allied Health, who along with colleagues Dr. Dennis Anderson, professor and chairman of the Department of Management and Information Technology (IT), and Dr. Sandy Westcott, professor of Management and IT, is in the process of formalizing service-learning into the curriculum at St. Francis College. "What's learned in the classroom comes alive for students when they can apply it

SERVICE-LEARNING PROJECT BENEFITS STUDENTS AND THE BROTHERS OF SFC

Dr. Sandy Westcott, professor of Information Technology, knew when the Brothers approached her with a need for a computer program that could organize and manage contact information for hundreds of friends with whom they'd built relationships over several decades that St. Francis College IT majors were right for the job.

"It was a wonderful opportunity for students to connect the dots between the lessons of the classroom and a real-life situation," she said.

Brent Schiller '12, appointed project manager, worked closely with several classmates to accommodate their new clients. As a group they discussed the Brothers' needs to determine exactly how to best approach the project; they built, tested and analyzed the program; and they made adjustments before turning it over officially.

"We approached the situation exactly as we would in a business environment," said Brent. "Managing all the moving parts provided great experience for learning what to expect someday when I actually begin my career. The project reinforced what we had learned in class and confirmed for me that I've chosen the right field—as well as feeling gratified that we had worked together to create something that is useful for the Brothers."

to solving a problem for someone, or a cause separate from and greater than themselves.”

A service-learning project can be completed in a day or over a long period of time—the main point is that while serving others students gain confidence in their abilities and come away with practical experience that can be included in a portfolio or referenced in a job interview. Whether coordinating and leading a nutrition class for kids in a nearby after-school program or building a website for a committee of the United Nations, St. Francis College students are learning by participating in these activities that indeed “it is in giving that we receive.”

“Service-learning transcends community service,” said Dr. Anderson. “It’s a win-win for everyone involved.”

A LIFELONG COMMITMENT

Many graduates of St. Francis College, inspired by the Franciscan spirit as students, continue to find innovative and meaningful ways to make service a significant part of their lives, either as part of their careers or in addition to them.

Al DiGuido '78, founder and CEO of Zeta Interactive, a full-service interactive marketing company based in New York City, is also the driving force behind Al’s Angels (alsangels.org), a nonprofit organization whose mission is to provide joy and comfort to families challenged by childhood cancer, rare blood diseases, AIDS and domestic violence.

With an annual budget of $300,000, Al’s Angels this year will provide holiday gifts for 5,000 children and Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for 2,000 families in the tri-state area. Al’s Angels is able to touch so many lives with the contributions it receives because its board of directors underwrites all of the organization’s fundraising and administrative expenses.

“Unfortunately, the need is tremendous but we are able to achieve what we do in our service community because of the hard work and generosity of an amazing group of volunteers,” said Mr. DiGuido of the 600-700 people who make up his organization’s Army of Angels. “Often people want to volunteer in their communities but don’t know how to start, so we make it easy by providing a number of choices that allow people to simply sign up and show up.”

Similarly, Billy O’Connell '87, who founded Colette’s Children’s Home (healinghomelessness.org) in Orange County, CA, in 1998 to provide homeless single women and mothers with a safe home and nurturing environment to put them on the path to self-sufficiency, has a long history of serving humanity both globally and in his local community.

Mr. O’Connell, who was born in New York City and raised in Ireland, worked with the Clinton Administration in the 1990s to help negotiate the Irish peace process and has also built schools in Grace Curatolo '12 with students from P.S. 133.

Afghanistan. In Orange County, where he serves on the Public Works Commission for the city of Huntington Beach, 1,700 women have transitioned from the streets to living in homes through Colette’s Children’s Home.

“The Franciscan Brothers gave me a break when I was a kid with the opportunity to attend St. Francis College,” said Mr. O’Connell. “Their impression and example have stayed with me throughout my life.”

The impact that Al’s Angels and Colette’s Children’s Home are making on lives and communities represent the efforts of only two St. Francis College alumni, reflecting the immeasurable influence that students, faculty, administrators and alumni over 150 years have had and continue to have on their communities.

“St. Francis College is more than a place that lectures and preaches about serving others,” said Al DiGuido. “It’s full of role models who put their words into action, reminding us that it’s our responsibility as Christians to be missionaries in our own way.”

Potential and a Promise

SFC's Project Access Program Opens the Door to Success in College and Beyond

RECOGNIZING THE POTENTIAL TO SUCCEED

Many St. Francis College students who share a desire to make the most of their potential through a college education, but lack the high school test scores traditionally required for admission, are working hard to beat the odds and preparing for bright futures.

Since 2003, 789 academically at-risk freshmen have been accepted to St. Francis College through Project Access, a program designed to help students develop college-level competencies in writing, reading and study skills so they have a greater chance to succeed and thrive in college.

"The most important word in the program's mission is 'potential,' said Monica Michalski '01, assistant dean for Freshman Studies and Academic Enhancement, who manages Project Access. "It's our job as members of a po·ten·tial (pə-těn'shəl) adj. Capable of being but not yet in existence; latent; having possibility, capability, or power. n. The inherent ability or capacity for growth, development, or coming into being; something possessing the capacity for growth or development.

Franciscan institution to identify potential during the recruitment process so students with a desire to succeed and willingness to work very hard may have the college experience and career they otherwise might never have imagined."

EARLY INTERVENTION IS KEY

Project Access students start with a placement test and then enroll in summer workshops that ease the transition to college. They master fundamental skills like how to study, how to read and think critically and how to understand the expectations of college life.

On-campus workshops are supplemented by experiences outside the classroom, including trips to the Promenade, Brooklyn Bridge, museums, art exhibits and concerts that provide opportunities for students to look more critically at their world and express their impressions through writing and discussion.

These workshops are complemented by hands-on activities that inspire students to observe their surroundings more critically and become more confident in expressing their point of view. During the summer of 2010, Project Access students participated in a new "Flipvideo project" in which they used small, handheld Flip cameras to develop documentary videos of the educational field trips they took to Greenwood Cemetery, the Brooklyn Museum, the Tenement Museum as well as other places of interest to them. The students share and discuss their documentary videos in class with each other.

View Project Access Student Videos on Tumblr at <http://sfcprojectaccess.tumblr.com/>

“Students come alive as they become acquainted with one another,” said Ms. Michalski. “Knowing other people whose situations are similar to their own helps build confidence, an essential ingredient for overcoming some of the common psychological barriers to success that students in this group often face.”

Project Access students and their parents attend a welcome reception early in the fall semester that is designed to instill confidence in their abilities and motivate them for success. Current and former Project Access students share their success stories and St. Francis faculty and administrators also attend to show their support. The highlight of this year’s event was an appearance by Matt Long, a New York City firefighter and talented athlete who, following a near fatal accident, worked tirelessly for three years to return to health and run the New York City Marathon. Mr. Long recounts his inspirational story in his book, The Long Run, which was distributed to the students to inspire them to work hard and overcome their own obstacles.

As part of the program, Project Access students take a noncredit reading, writing and study skills course as well as a three-credit basic writing course to brush up on their skills during the fall semester. They are required to meet regularly with their advisors and instructors as well as participate in individual and group tutoring sessions at the College’s Academic Enhancement Center, a technology-rich learning environment with a staff of more than 30 professional and peer tutors that offers tutoring to students in all subjects.

Technology such as interactive smart boards that were funded by a federal grant, is essential to Project Access.

Project Access students, whose fees for course materials and educational field trips are covered by the program, are tracked closely as a means of ensuring academic success. Those who receive a grade of “C” or below in these workshops must take an additional workshop in the spring to further develop their writing and study skills. Project Access and Academic Enhancement Center personnel reach out to those whose grade point averages are below 2.0 at midterm and semester’s end to help them stay on track academically.

“The notion of ‘sink or swim’ is quickly becoming outdated when it comes to a student’s ability to adapt to college life,” said Mitch Levenberg, director of the Academic Enhancement Center. “This is especially important for an institution like St. Francis College, whose mission includes a commitment to educating the whole person.”

ADDRESSING PERSISTENCE

A common challenge among Project Access students is the ability to continue their studies in the face of academic difficulty. With this hurdle in mind, administrators, staff and faculty who comprise the College’s Retention Working Group collaborate regularly to determine the most effective strategies to encourage students to stay the course and eventually overcome the factors that sometimes discourage students from remaining in college over the long term.

For example, one indicator of a student’s likelihood to succeed academically and persist through graduation is early declaration of a major. To address this point, Project Access counselors work closely with students to identify their strengths, interests and life goals. As a result, 88 percent of Project Access students enrolled as of spring 2010 have declared their major, a nine percent jump over the previous academic year and a full percentage point higher than the remaining currently enrolled student body.

These statistics play out in the College’s overall retention rate. (The freshman retention rate is calculated as the percentage of first-year freshmen who return to the College the following fall; typically retention rates are recorded in two-semester, four-semester, and six-semester intervals.) The average two-semester retention rate for Project Access students is 72 percent, compared with the non-Project Access freshman retention rate of 76 percent.

“The retention rate of these students is particularly impressive relative to the general student population, considering there is approximately a 26 percent difference in the average SAT scores of these two groups,” explained Ms. Michalski. “Project Access students have done a phenomenal job of minimizing the gap in academic performance.”

The students’ success is rewarding not only for themselves. Faculty members witness firsthand Project Access participants’ progress as they push to become better students.

“I’ve watched students—who have been told time and time again during their early education that they cannot succeed—respond to the challenges of college-level work when given the opportunity and necessary resources,” said Dr. Ian Maloney, professor of English. “It’s inspiring to watch their efforts and assist them in meeting their educational goals.”

LEADING THE FIELD

At St. Francis College, a desire to make a difference for students who otherwise might not have a chance to attain a college degree helped shape the goals and objectives of Project Access. Now, the College is sharing its strategies and lessons learned through the program with other institutions of higher learning.

Ms. Michalski and Steven Catalano, director of Institutional Research and Planning, co-authors of Improving Student Persistence and Success: A Data-Driven Approach, emphasize the importance of crafting measurable goals that reflect the unique needs of the student population at any given college or university.

“An institution must be able to measure and interpret meaningfully the needs and progress of its students and programs,” said Mr. Catalano. “We are fortunate to be in a position to share tools for accomplishing that and, hopefully, help an even greater number of students realize their dream of a college education.”

Project Access Success Stories

The following represent just a few of the many former Project Access students who graduated from St. Francis College and are succeeding in the workplace and graduate school.

Anita Barbier '09

Information Technology

After an internship during her senior year with Insurance Service Office, Inc., Anita was hired as a technical specialist and crisis coordinator.

Javier Crespo '10

B.S. / M.S. Accounting

Javier is working as an auditor at Ernst and Young and recently took the CPA Exam.

Danielle Faro '09

Childhood Education

Danielle is a substitute teacher at P.S. 200 and is attending graduate school at Touro College.

Michael Moncada '07

Information Technology

Michael is an IT specialist for the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command in Washington DC.

Josiane Peluso '09

Health Promotion and Science

Josiane is a certified health education specialist with a health insurance company. She has been accepted to the master's degree program in Public Health at Brooklyn College.

Jisleyni Perez '09

Psychology

Jisleyni is a community specialist in the traumatic brain injury program at AHRC, an organization devoted to addressing the needs of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. She is also pursuing a master's degree in School Psychology at Long Island University.

Marlena Salubro '07

English

Marlena is working toward a master's degree in English from Brooklyn College. She plans to teach in the Catholic school system.

St. Francis College acknowledges and is grateful for support for Project Access from grants sponsored by U.S. Senator Charles Schumer and U.S. Representatives Yvette D. Clarke, Edolphus Towns, and Peter T. King '65.

Who Gives?

At St. Francis College, the invaluable gift of education is passed on from one generation to the next through the generous support of alumni and friends. Three donors briefly discuss what supporting St. Francis College means to them.

Edward Reilly '68

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Since 2001, I've been President and CEO of the American Management Association International, and from 1996 to 2000, I was President of Big Flower Holdings, Inc. Prior to that, I was President of the McGraw-Hill Broadcasting Companies.

WHY ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE?

St. Francis had an excellent business program and its location allowed me to commute from my home in the Bronx and provided access to the Wall Street area, where I worked. I could get from class to my job on Liberty Street in about five minutes.

FAVORITE CLASSES

All the business courses I took were very comprehensive; in particular I remember Michael Casey's Economics class and Jim McGinnis's Business Law class. John Sexton's Theology courses were always thought provoking and offered a very adult appreciation for the Catholic religion.

PHILANTHROPIC PHILOSOPHY

There is an endless number of good causes; my wife and I like to donate to those we are connected to personally. We choose to contribute where we know we won't be largely paying for overhead, but rather where the funds will make a real difference. This is the case with St. Francis College—the institution does a good job of making sure donations from alumni and friends add to the total value of its programs.

The management events that I sponsor for St. Francis College students through my role at the American Management Association is an extension of my philanthropic efforts, inspired by President George H.W. Bush's 1,000 Points of Light Campaign, when he asked Americans to make a direct and involved contribution to their communities. These give us a chance to meet and interact with students and deepen our relationship with the College.

WHY DID YOU DECIDE TO MAKE A PLANNED GIFT?

Planned gifts are a logical thing for people who have any accumulated wealth. They are an inexpensive way, relative to what would be owed in taxes, to leave money to the College. I have everything I need. Many of my classmates have done well. If everyone from the graduating class of 1968 found a way to make a planned gift, collectively we could leave a meaningful legacy to the College.

Edward Reilly '68

Tara Flood '07

PROFESSION

I am assistant controller for TGI Office Automations, a copier company based in Brooklyn.

Tara Flood '07

FONDEST MEMORIES OF ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE

As a founding member of the St. Francis College Dance Team, I was very involved socially as well as academically. Also because of the class sizes, I always felt comfortable and professors always knew my name.

FAVORITE ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE PROFESSOR

Dr. Sandy Westcott inspired me to pursue Information Technology as a major. She made an effort to learn about me and I learned a lot from her.

WHY DO YOU GIVE TO ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE?

Because I'm just starting my career, I'm not able to give much but I believe it's important to give something. I loved being a St. Francis College student and it's important to give back as a "thank you" so they can continue doing what they do so well.

Caroline, Peter and Juliana Fazio

The Fazio family

In 2003, the Fazio family established the Peter P. Fazio '60 Scholarship. By 2007 it was fully endowed and first awarded in 2008. Among the scholarship's eligibility criteria is for the recipient to be a student-athlete from Brooklyn or Queens.

WHY IS ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE SPECIAL TO YOUR FAMILY?

Caroline (Peter Fazio's wife):

Shortly after Pete graduated, St. Francis offered him a position to teach and coach baseball. He was there only for a few years before moving on to Manhattan College where he worked for 30 years, but our relationship with the people at St. Francis and the College itself has endured in a very special way.

WHY DID YOU ESTABLISH AN ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP?

Peter (Peter Fazio's son):

Mom came up with the idea, first for people to make a donation to the College in lieu of flowers when Dad passed away.

It just grew from there—to help students experience what our family has. The fact that dad never knew of our decision to start the scholarship at the place that meant so much to him makes the process a little bittersweet, but he would be happy and proud.

Caroline: Meeting the student who is the beneficiary of the scholarship was a pleasure. She and her family are wonderful people; it makes us happy that we are able to make difference for such a deserving student.

WHAT ABOUT ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE STANDS OUT?

Peter: I have very clear childhood memories of attending events at the College; it was apparent to me even then that it is a special place. The people have a genuine liking for one another and they help each other tremendously. The Small College of Big Dreams is a perfect way to describe St. Francis College.

MAJOR: Education

HOMETOWN/NEIGHBORHOOD:

Bensonhurst, Brooklyn

HIGH SCHOOL:

James Madison High School

WHY I CHOSE ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE:

St. Francis College has a great Education program. That was more important to me than going to a big school.

CAREER GOALS:

I hope to teach kindergarten; kids are so great at that age. I'm looking forward to student teaching in the spring. I haven't heard yet where that will be but I'm eager to do some real teaching rather than observing.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES:

In addition to currently being a member of Kappa Theta Nu sorority, I served during my junior year as treasurer for the Student Government Association.

The most exciting thing I'm a part of, however, is Relay for Life, an annual campus fundraiser that raises money for the American Cancer Society and the level of awareness for cancer and its treatment.

Over the next several months, our committee will work together to recruit teams to participate, organize the efforts of alumni who return to campus to participate, and strategize ways to reach our goal of raising $15,000. Many of the people who participate do so in memory or honor of someone they know who has been affected by cancer. It's great to be involved in something that helps so many people.

New Accounting Masters Degree Program Launched at SFC

NIGHT CLASSES ARE IDEAL FOR WORKING ADULTS

Working professionals may now enhance their skills and marketability by enrolling in St. Francis College's new Master's in Professional Accountancy program, which admitted its first class of students during the fall 2010 semester.

The program, which can be completed in as quickly as two years, is designed for students who already possess an undergraduate degree in Business Administration or Management, including Finance, Information Technology, Marketing, Management, or Human Resources, and wish to pursue careers in Accounting. Completion of the program fulfills the course of study required by the New York State Education Department and the New York State Board of Accountancy, qualifying all graduates to sit for the Certified Public Accountant (CPA) exam.

"This new master's degree program allows us to reach a group of people who may be thinking about a career change, a new career or simply want to enhance their current job status," said Dr. Carmine Nogara, incoming chair of the Department of Accounting. "Our track record of success in Accounting makes this a natural expansion of the opportunities we offer."

The College's combined B.S./M.S. program has graduated 30 students since it was launched in 2008. Many of these graduates are now working at Big Four accounting firms as well as smaller public and private firms and government institutions. Approximately 30 more students are expected to complete the program over the next two years.

Planning for the Master's in Professional Accountancy program began in early 2009 after the College received numerous inquiries from alumni who hold bachelor's degrees in Accounting about their eligibility for the combined B.S./M.S. degree program.

"Because the combined degree program includes undergraduate courses as well as master's level courses, it's not designed for anyone who already holds a bachelor's degree in Accounting—from St. Francis College or any other institution," said

Dr. Geoffrey Horlick, the program director for the Master's in Professional Accountancy program. "The new program, however, appropriately fits their needs."

Ideal for working people, the Master's in Professional Accounting program is currently offered in the evening. Students take upper-level courses in financial accounting, managerial accounting, audit, taxation, accounting information systems and a capstone seminar.

For more information about St. Francis College's Master's of Professional Accountancy program, please contact the Office of Admissions 718.489.5200 or admissions@stfranciscollege.edu.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Gerard Davidson (Chemistry) was awarded, in conjunction with his colleague Dr. Michael J. Maroney of the University of Massachusetts, a supplemental grant by the (former) Inorganic, Bioinorganic and Organometallic (IBO) Chemistry Program at the National Science Foundation. The grant funded a summer research fellowship for Dr. Davidson and St. Francis College student, Jeffrey Rameau. While working at the University of Massachusetts, Dr. Davidson and Rameau investigated, amongst other things, mechanistic aspects of nickel-containing superoxide dismutase. The results of their research will be presented at the spring 2011 meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Raymond DeJesus, M.F.A. (English) had a poem published in the November 2010 issue of Maggy Poetry Magazine.

Dr. Timothy Dugan (Communication Arts) had a new essay published in Catholic Theater and Drama: Critical Essay, which was published by McFarland. The essay, entitled "Publicity, Props and PlayText in a Franciscan Setting," is a discussion of a team-taught course at the College by Brother Edward Wesley and Dr. Dugan.

Dr. Yassin El-Ayouty (International Cultural Studies) was hosted by the Eastern District of New York Federal Court to present an overview of Islamic law. Dr. El-Ayouty focused on the underutilization of Sharia law to combat terrorism. More than 100 people attended the presentation, including judges, clerks and senior officers from the United Nations.

Dr. Irina Ellison (Biology) delivered "Population differences in selenium status and blood glutathione concentration" at the Columbia University seminar series on population genetics. In addition, Dr. Ellison delivered "Decoding health impacts of sex in young women" that was sponsored by the Women's Center. During the spring of 2011, Dr. Ellison will chair a multidisciplinary professional conference at St. Francis College entitled "Women's Health: Science, Technology and Society."

Dr. Suzanne Forsberg (Fine Arts) presented "Another American Legend: The Music of Aaron Copland" as a special feature of the exhibition "Andrew Wyeth: An American Legend" at the Hyde Collection in Glens Falls, NY. Dr. Forsberg gave a lecture sponsored by St. Francis College's East European Club entitled "Czech Music in Prague: Mozart, Smetana and Dvořák." Last summer, she traveled to France and Germany for research and digital photography for an honors class. She also continued work on her 10 year project documenting the life of Johann Sebastian Bach. While in Leipzig, Germany, she attended several concerts at the annual Bachfest. She also traveled to Liège, Belgium, for continued research on the 18th century symphony. Her travels were funded by the College's Faculty Development Committee and the Faculty Research Committee.

Dr. Forsberg was chair of the conference arrangements committee and a member of the program committee for the Fourth Biennial Meeting of the Society for 18th century Music held at St. Francis College last spring. A volume of selected papers from this conference will appear in 2011.

Dr. Virginia Franklin (English) finalized a study abroad agreement between St. Francis College and the University of Waikato (UW) in Hamilton, New Zealand, where she taught and conducted research as a Fulbright Scholar in 2001. UW offers St. Francis students the opportunity to study in a wide variety of programs in addition to the traditional arts and sciences, such as marine biology, indigenous studies, education, sports management and the unique opportunity to study law, which is an undergraduate program in the New Zealand system.

Dr. Franklin's photographs continue to be exhibited widely. Her photograph, "Great Wall of China," was accepted in the International Image Salon Oldenzaal 2010 in the Netherlands. She also had four of five submissions accepted and exhibited in The Weill-Cornell Medical Library group's photography exhibit, which ran from February through June 2010. Her work from this exhibit also appeared in the Bronx-Westchester section of the New York Daily News.

Dr. Uwe P. Gielen (Psychology) gave a plenary address at a meeting of the International Council of Psychologists at the University of Padua, Italy. His address discussed "The emergence of global psychology." In addition, he gave two presentations at the University of Guelph, Canada in connection with the Fourth On New Shores Conference 2010: Resilience of Immigrants. His topics were respectively: "Growing up Chinese in New York City" and "Dragon Seed: A Visual Tour of New York City Chinatown." Furthermore, he published a book review entitled "A global perspective on death and bereavement," which appeared in the International Psychology Bulletin.

Dr. Kathryn Grant (Communication Arts) won the Jerry Kaufman Award in Playwriting and the 2010 Premiere Stages Play Festival for her play, "The Good Counselor." As a result of the second award, her play was produced last summer at Premiere Stages at Kean University. Grant's play was chosen from more than 300 submissions to the Premiere Stages Play Festival.

Dr. Michael Kaune (Sociology and Criminal Justice) has been volunteering with the Geneva branch office of the Franciscans International (FI) while on a leave of absence from the College. Dr. Kaune is working with Sister Denise Boyle, executive director, writing an animation booklet for FI to spread the news of its work and to encourage participation in its mission. Information on the work of FI can be found at its website www.franciscansinternational.org.

Dr. Steven M. Lipson (Biology) will address the Division of Agricultural and Food Chemistry (AGFD) of the American Chemical Society (ACS) symposium on "Vitamins: Food vs. Supplements" at the society's 241st national meeting in March. Dr. Lipson will discuss his research into plant phytochemicals and comestible juices as antiviral agents. The symposium will cover the advantage of obtaining nutrients from food and supplements, special needs for supplements, adsorption and recent developments of encapsulations. Dr. Lipson was recently nominated by science educators and researchers nationwide for Fellowship in the American Academy of Microbiology (AAM). The AAM is a national honor society that accepts individuals with outstanding service as a mentor, educator and researcher.

Dr. Lipson's Certificate of Qualification to serve as laboratory director in the disciplines of Cellular Immunology and Virology was recently extended to 2012. The Certificate of Qualification was issued by the New York State Department of Health.

Dr. Stephen Marino (Communication Arts) has edited and written the critical commentary for the new edition of Arthur Miller's A View from the Bridge, published by Methuen. Also at the American Literature Association Conference in San Francisco in May 2010, Dr. Marino presented a paper about Arthur Miller entitled, "Brooklyn's Shakespeare." In addition, Dr. Marino's essay "'It's All About the Language': Arthur Miller's Poetic Dialogue" appears in the recently published collection of essays, Critical Insights, Arthur Miller by Salem Press.

Dr. John McNamara (Education) teamed up with physical educators from Westchester University in Pennsylvania to provide workout guidelines for the average person wanting to exercise in the comfort of their own home. Emphasis was placed on avoiding costly equipment, yet working all the major muscles for a safe and effective workout. The article was published in the spring / summer 2010 edition of the Pennsylvania Journal of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

In September of 2010 Dr. McNamara passed the United States Olympic Weightlifting Sport Performance Coaching exam. This certification is geared toward helping Olympic and professional athletes reach peak physical performance using scientific training methods.

Dr. Kathleen Nolan (Biology) had her article "Fish Farming: Friend or Foe?" appear in the 2010 Global Landscapes Conference Proceedings. The article is from a presentation at the interdisciplinary conference, "Global Landscapes: Ethics, Entrepreneurship, and Organizations in an Era of Global Economic and Financial Crisis," which was held at King's College in Wilkes-Barre, PA in April 2010.

Dr. Patricia Rosof (History) served as the curriculum consultant for the Korea for Beginners course offered by the Korea Society in August. Also in August, she served as the consultant for the one-week Advanced Placement Institute in European History offered by Manhattan College.

Dr. Miriam Salholz (Accounting and Business Law) presented a paper on "The Law of Death and Dying" at the 7th Annual International Conference on Law at the Athens Institute for Education and Research in Athens, Greece. Dr. Salholz wrote the national report for the United States on "Law of the World Trade Organization" for the Annual Congress of the Young Lawyers International Association ("AIJA"), which was published in the Congress proceedings. She also represented the complaining party in a mock World Trade Organization panel hearing at the AIJA Annual Congress in Charleston, SC.

She also reviewed two sets of chapters for the upcoming ninth edition of Business Law: Principles and Cases in the Legal Environment by Daniel Davidson and Lynn Forsythe that will be published by Aspen Publishing in 2010.

Dr. Erez Shochat (Mathematics) had his paper "A Galois Correspondence for Countable Short Recursively Saturated Models of PA" published in the May issue of the Mathematical Logic Quarterly.

Dr. Gregory F. Tague (English) published (as editor) the literary anthology Common Boundary: Stories of Immigration (which was reviewed positively by the Midwest Book Review and five-star ratings on Amazon and Goodreads).

The book consists of 29 works by 19 different authors from around the world who discuss what it means to be an immigrant—with candor, humor, and insight. Dr. Tague's (previously published) article on Modernism will be adapted by Professor James H. Overfield (University of Vermont) for the introduction, "The Birth of Moderns in Europe," for the World History Encyclopedia. Dr. Tague's own creative work, "Orphaned Birth-Day" was published in the spring 2010 Ozone Park Journal, and as part of the launch of that issue Dr. Tague participated in a reading at Heskin Contemporary art gallery in Manhattan. Dr. Tague continues to edit ASEBL Journal and is happy to announce that the fall 2010 issue includes an essay by Kristen Morale '11.

Dr. Jennifer Wingate (Fine Arts) presented a paper, "World War I Memorials and their Afterlives," in October at the New England American Studies Association conference at the Massachusetts Historical Society in Boston. She also co-chaired the inaugural symposium of the Association of Historians of American Art. Over 150 professors, graduate students, independent scholars and museum curators attended the symposium, which featured sessions and other events at St. Francis College, the Brooklyn Museum, and the Brooklyn Historical Society.

New Marketing and Social Media Efforts Keep Terriers Fans In the Know

FACEBOOK PAGE EXPECTED TO HAVE MORE THAN 1,000 FOLLOWERS BY YEAR'S END

Live video streaming and social media are making it possible for Terriers fans to keep up with the College's teams in real time and learn scores and other information the moment they become available.

Facebook and Twitter pages, created last summer, offer fans regular news, scores and information about upcoming events. And now all home games for women's volleyball, men's and women's basketball, and men's and women's water polo are video streamed live on SFCathletics.com, making it possible for fans to watch quality play-by-play productions from their desktops, laptops or iPads.

"Video streaming is having a positive impact on recruiting, particularly with potential student-athletes who live a great distance from New York City," said David Gansell, director of sports information and marketing. "Water polo recruits from Europe can now check out our team without making a plane trip."

SFCathletics.com, the Athletics website, now also features on its home page links to student-athlete interviews and has launched Terrier Sports Spotlight, a 30-minute interview and highlight show that will also appear on Brooklyn Community Access Television (BCAT) this winter and spring. Seth Cantor, play-by-play announcer for Terriers men's and women's basketball, is the program's studio host.

SFC's Libero a Leader On and Off the Volleyball Court

BY DODIE KENAN '11

On the volleyball court, the libero remains situated in the back row, giving her a vantage point for setting up plays, advising teammates about the opponent's strengths and weaknesses, and leading the defense into the best return position. Much like the role of a point guard in basketball, the libero's primary responsibility is to understand and decipher the game as it is played and respond to play on the court with speed and accuracy.

Lily Rodriguez '11, the Terriers libero (which means "free" in Italian) does not display the height or muscle mass characteristic of many who perform this function but she has found a way to use that to her advantage.

"My slight frame gives me the speed and agility I need to do my job," said Ms. Rodriguez. "I'm close to the ground where I can get hits that fall just inches from the floor."

The Linden, NJ native, who attends St. Francis on both an academic and athletic scholarship, was approached by other colleges but chose St. Francis because it suited her overall needs—and she works hard to excel on the volleyball court as well as in the classroom.

"While I'm pleased with my athletic accomplishments, I take great pride in my 3.8 GPA and work very hard to maintain it," she said.

In addition to her studies and team commitments, Ms. Rodriguez, who now lives in Cobble Hill, serves as the volleyball team representative to the Student Athletic Activities Committee. This group works to increase student attendance at sporting events and enhance awareness for worthy causes through fundraising opportunities such as Shoot for the Cure, which supports cancer research.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

A strong case can be made that the Terriers men's team is likely to compete for a top spot in the Northeast Conference standings this season. Under the direction of Glenn Braica, who returned to St. Francis College this year as head coach, the Terriers stand to make an impact locally and beyond.

Coach Glenn Braica

Returning are senior guards Ricky Cadell '11 and Akeem Bennett '11, who have added All-Northeast Conference honors to their resumes, making St. Francis the only NEC team to have two players with such an honor. Cadell, the leading returning scorer in the conference, was a Second Team All-NEC selection as a sophomore. Bennett has been named to the pre-season All-NEC team.

The 2010-2011 season started with trips in November to Boston College and the University of South Florida before the home opener against Howard University. The highlight of the non-conference schedule will be an appearance in the Madison Square Garden Holiday Festival on December 20-21 alongside teams from St. John's University, Davidson College, and Northwestern University.

"It's great for our program to be able to play in the Garden," said Braica. "I'm thrilled that our fans will be able to watch us play against some of the best programs in the country on one of the biggest stages in the world."

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

With several newcomers joining last year's squad, Coach Brenda Milano and her staff believe that a Northeast Conference championship is a realistic goal.

Strength in the frontcourt starts with sophomores Autumn Lau '13 and Kim Snauwaert '13. Lau, who last year was named to NEC's All-Rookie Team, was impressive in her first season, leading the team in scoring, rebounding and minutes played, and scoring in double figures in 20 of 29 games. Snauwaert, a 6'1" forward from Belgium, is a force on both sides of the ball, scoring a career high 16 points against Sacred Heart University.

"This team has the potential to do something very special if everyone continues to work hard in practice," said coach Milano. "When adversity occurs we need to learn to lean on each other, pick each other up and help push each other through. A big key for us will be maintaining our composure and continuing to improve our chemistry throughout the season."

The Terriers' season began in early November. Indiana University-Purdue University, Indianapolis visits Brooklyn on December 12, before the Terriers take on Fairfield University December 19 in Connecticut.

U.S. National Guard Experiences Lead to Life Success

BY MICHAEL GARAY '14

While under enemy fire in Iraq, Gina Giles '11 visualized herself in the future as a college student and member of a Division I collegiate volleyball team as a way to remain positive and work through the danger inherent in the life of a soldier.

"The prospect of receiving an e-mail from Terriers coach Lucy Lirano asking me which number I wanted on the back of my jersey kept me going," said Sgt. Giles, who spent a total of 13 months overseas with the U.S. National Guard. "My contract expires in 2011; while my experience in Iraq gave me direction and helped me grow up, I have mixed feelings about the possibility of going to Afghanistan."

Driven by patriotism and a sense of obligation after the devastation of September 11, Sgt. Giles followed the example of several family members who have served in the military by joining the National Guard in 2005 at age 19.

She entered active duty after earning an associate's degree from Scottsdale Community College in Arizona and learned of her acceptance to St. Francis College while in Iraq.

"I felt it was necessary to represent veterans and the people who had lost their lives," she said. "But knowing I had college and volleyball ahead of me kept me intact mentally, spiritually and emotionally," she said.

Now a senior, Sgt. Giles applies lessons learned from her fellow company members about leadership and the importance of team to her volleyball game.

"On active duty, you are part of a team. You pay attention to keep one another alive. There are no personal gains," she said.

The self-discovery that accompanies the experience of surviving a war and having a chance to complete her education have provided Sgt. Gina Giles a perspective different from many other college students who might have a tendency to take their opportunities for granted. Her advice to others: "Live every moment."

Gina Giles '11

New Era Begins for Women's Volleyball

BY EUGENE DOMINGUEZ '12

One might assume that Micah Acoba, with a degree in English and American Literature from Harvard and a law degree from Cornell University, might choose a career that allows him to earn more money in one day than many of us dream of bringing home in a year.

But the Terriers' new head coach for women's volleyball, who contributed as an undergraduate student-athlete to an Ivy League volleyball championship for Harvard and coached men's teams at Tufts and Cornell as well as the United East Athletics Association women's club team, prefers the life of a coach.

"Besides cultivating a winning volleyball program, our most important job is to help prepare student-athletes for their lives after St. Francis College," said Coach Acoba. "Watching the girls develop into exemplary citizens through their friendships and team experience is rewarding and exhilarating."

Coach Micah Acoba

The Hawaii native brings to St. Francis College a coaching style that he describes as allowing players to grow from lessons learned on the court to eventually realize their potential.

"I knew early in the season that we would have to work hard to reach our potential," Coach Acoba explained. "I have confidence that we're capable of competing with the best."

He knows that support from the St. Francis College community makes a difference and particularly appreciates when student-athletes from other Terrier teams show up at matches to cheer on the volleyball team.

"It's a long season and the game can take its toll on players," he said. "Aside from staying rested, support from students, parents and alumni provides an important source of energy for players as well as the coaching staff."

Profile of a Terrier

A Winning Formula for Lifelong Success

Joe Browne '68

Joe Browne '68 is able to claim something that few people today can: Except for a stint in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves after graduating from St. Francis College in 1968, he's worked for the same organization his entire career. In fact, he is the longest-serving employee in the history of the National Football League's front office.

I started part-time in the mail room at the NFL during the second semester of my freshman year at St. Francis," he said. "When I returned from the Marines in 1969, there was a job for me in the public relations department at league headquarters."

With the opportunity over the years to develop communications strategy on topics that ranged from anti-trust issues to the implementation of instant replay, his role grew with the league, and he eventually became executive vice president of communications and government affairs. Now, as senior advisor to the commissioner, a role he assumed last spring, Mr. Browne focuses primarily on representing the NFL's legislative interests in Washington and overseeing the league's philanthropic activities.

"I've seen the NFL grow from 12 employees in New York to more than 900 around the globe," he said. "While getting a formal education at St. Francis, I received my second education in the NFL office—observing and listening to the executives around me and patterning my professional behavior after the way they carried themselves. The people in this environment were not strictly from Brooklyn and Queens, which had been my experience. I learned quickly the difference between 'axe' and 'ask', and the correct way to say '33rd and 3rd'. I had no choice."

Growing up in Queens and playing basketball for powerhouse Archbishop Molloy High School, Mr. Browne's true heroes were his mother, who alone raised him and his four siblings, and his older sister Clare who started working right after high school to help support the family. The first in his family to attend college, he received an academic scholarship to St. Francis that was awarded annually to one student from each Catholic high school in New York.

Joe Browne '68

"While getting a formal education at St. Francis, I received my second education in the NFL office—observing and listening to the executives around me and patterning my professional behavior after the way they carried themselves."

Mr. Browne and his wife Karyn, an executive managing editor at Scholastic, Inc., eventually started a scholarship at St. Francis that bears his name and is awarded to a Molloy graduate who like himself is from a single-parent family.

"The opportunity to go to college in an urban setting was great and I recommend it to anyone," he said. "The advantage in New York or any big city is business contacts and access to relevant part-time work."

This philosophy carries over to the advice he offers young people, including his son Randy '07, who are interested in careers in sports. He says that because the field has become so competitive, a degree in a specialty like law, finance, or advertising—rather than sports management—along with an internship in a sports environment at any level goes a long way for new graduates.

"All students should work part-time in a field that interests them so they can begin familiarizing themselves with the strategies and disciplines of that industry," he said. "Learning from successful professionals in a real work environment is extremely valuable."

Joe Browne should know. It's a formula that has worked for him for more than 40 years.

Alumni Board of Directors Welcomes Six New Members

Six alumni have joined the St. Francis College Alumni Board of Directors, which works to address the needs of alumni in their post-graduate lives.

Rosmery Camilo '06

works for National Grid as an analyst in the Management Reporting and Planning Department. She holds a master's degree in Finance from Baruch College, Zicklin School of Business.

Salvatore Demma '09

is a credit analyst for JP Morgan Chase in its Commercial Banking Division, where he is responsible for maintaining an asset-based lending portfolio. He has also worked for Chase's Community Development Group, which carries out a variety of philanthropic activities.

Patrick Dugan '01

works for CB Richard Ellis as a tenant and landlord representation broker, providing real estate advisory and brokerage services to public and private sector clients. He is chairman of the board for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Brooklyn and Queens, a member of the Real State Board of New York and a licensed associate broker in the State of New York.

Kathleen Fraser '97 is a Social Studies and Technology content specialist for Children First Network 309 of the New York City Department of Education. She is also a lecturer of History and English at St. Joseph's College and for the U.S. military. She holds a doctorate in Educational Leadership from North Central University, and master's degrees in Education Administration from the College of St. Rose and Integrated Education from Cambridge College. HELP ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE IN THE FRANCISCAN TRADITION

THRIVE IN BROOKLYN HEIGHTS

Support the Fund for St. Francis College

St. Francis College's effort to offer a Franciscan education that exceeds the highest standards of excellence is attracting unprecedented numbers of young men and women to Remsen Street. Once again, a record number of students enrolled at St. Francis in the fall of 2010.

For many of these young men and women, the availability of financial aid is essential to their ability to earn a degree and achieve their dreams. Therefore, the Fund for St. Francis College is devoted to extending a helping hand to our students in the form of scholarship support. By making your gift today, you will change lives by keeping a great college experience within the reach of our students, the civic and business community leaders of tomorrow. Our students are deeply grateful for your support, and they reflect that gratitude in hard work and dedication to their studies in the pursuit of their dreams and goals.

Please help make their dreams come true.

You can send your check payable to St. Francis College within the enclosed business reply envelope, or make a secure gift on-line at <https://gifts.stfranciscollege.edu>.

You may also make a gift to the Fund for St. Francis College by:

- Credit Card

Annual Donor Report

A MESSAGE FROM DENIS SALAMONE '75, DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN, BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Generosity of Alumni and Friends is Promising in Challenging Economic Times

While the recovery of our national economy continues to elicit a variety of opinions from the financial community, the alumni and friends of St. Francis College have expressed optimism and faith in the lifelong beneficial effects of a quality, values-based Franciscan education through your generous support in our fiscal year 2009-2010.

This past year the Board of Trustees determined that all unrestricted gifts were to be used for student scholarship assistance, and have renewed that decision for 2010-2011 ensuring that your support will directly assist today's students to remain in school at St. Francis. What could be more Franciscan?

Denis Salamone '75

Robert Green Ingersoll, a famed orator of the 19th century, once observed that "We rise by lifting others." For over 150 years, St. Francis College has endeavored to assist our students to realize and surpass their personal goals.

In gratitude to all those who share in our mission of "lifting others," we list the names of our 2009-2010 donors and recognize in them a source of pride and inspiration for everyone here at St. Francis. On behalf of the faculty, staff and above all the students we serve, please accept our sincere thanks.

Please continue your generous ways in 2010-2011.

Think you need a fortune to fund a St. Francis College scholarship? Think again!

St. Francis College offers many ways to help our benefactors meet their giving and financial goals—and you don't need a fortune to invest to experience the joys and personal growth charity brings.

You can establish your own scholarship fund with a gift of $100,000 or more or you can create a sunset/term fund in memory or honor of a special individual with as little as $10,000. If you wish, you may further advance these funds by contributing at a subsequent time.

Scholarships can be established through outright gifts or a variety of planned-giving options including bequest, charitable remainder trusts, lead trusts, gifts of insurance, etc.

Friends of SFC also have the option of making a contribution to an existing scholarship fund at any time. A comprehensive list of all scholarships is detailed in this stewardship report.

Please consider leaving a legacy of gratitude and hope to future generations of SFC students and to a Franciscan tradition with proven results. Contact the Development Office today to see how we can help you become a scholarship funder.
